Dear Parents and Carers,

There have been a number of products sold in shops and on line recently as 'educational toys'. They are supposed to help with concentration and stress etc. However some pupils are now bringing in these 'toys' and they are causing some disruption in school.

We have very specialist 'fidget' toys which are recommended by Occupational Therapists and Educational Psychologists that work with our school and these are suggested for specific children. These are the only aids to concentration/stress that are allowed in school and must be given to the pupil by a member of staff.

If any pupil brings in any 'educational toy' and proceeds to use it during lessons, it will be removed for them to collect at the end of the day.

Thank you for your assistance with this.

Yours sincerely

Neil Hedworth
